NOTES

- Students need to complete a minimum of 90 semester hours before they can be eligible to apply to the College of Medicine. The majority of students who are admitted have earned their bachelor's degree. Students working toward a bachelor's degree can major in any discipline, but most students are closest to completing a biology, chemistry or nutritional science degree.
- By completing Metropolitan Community College's Associate in Science in Pre-Medicine, students will complete two years (approximately 68 semester hours) of required coursework in the specific areas needed for admission and will also earn an associate degree from MCC.
- Students will then need to transfer to a four-year school to complete further studies needed for admission. Courses such as Biochemistry and Genetics will be required. Students should take additional science coursework beyond the minimum required to increase their knowledge base.
- The College of Medicine admits approximately 130 students in August of each year. November 1 is the application deadline. Admission into the College of Medicine is very competitive.
The following are recommendations for admission:
  - Maintaining a high GPA – students admitted to the College of Medicine have a mean GPA of 3.73.

Being prepared for the MCAT. The MCAT covers four areas: verbal reasoning, physical sciences, biological sciences and a writing sample. With the exception of the writing sample, the scores can range from 1 – 15. The mean scores of admitted students are approximately 10 in each section.
  - Communication skills are important and are assessed during the medical school interview.
- Once admitted into the College of Medicine, students will take 20 semester hours during the first semester. To make sure students are prepared for this heavy load, the College of Medicine recommends that students:
  - Minimize outside work so that they can be successful in their courses.
  - Take full course loads each semester/quarter to prepare for the rigor. Students should gradually increase their course load each year.
  - Limit the amount of withdrawals and/or repeats on transcripts.
