

Metropolitan Community College Kickstart Online Institute (KSOI) Frequently asked Questions for Students

1. What is the Kickstart Online Institute (KSOI)?

The KSOI is a series of MCC general education courses that are scheduled for college-ready high school students to kickstart their college degrees while still in high school. All instructors are Nebraska Department of Education certified. These courses count toward most MCC degrees and are transferable, and may count toward high school credit.

2. How is a KSOI online class different from a “regular” MCC class?

The KSOI class content and college credit is the same as a regular MCC class taught on campus or online. Students earn college credit, and it is included on their MCC transcript. Regular MCC courses usually go for 11 weeks. The biggest difference in the KSOI classes is they last 15 weeks. The content and assignments are spread out over a longer time than a “regular” MCC class. Having additional time to consider and study content and complete activities may be helpful for many students to achieve a high grade in the class.

3. How is an online class different from an on campus course?

You will probably never physically meet your instructor or your fellow students when you take an online class. All the instruction is online, with printed instructions or content and videos. Students submit assignments via Canvas. You complete all the work independently. The instructor will return assignments online, as well.

To achieve in an online course, you need to be very disciplined to log on to your course daily and hand in assignments on time. No one will be there to remind you. You should also be a good reader, as most material is printed. You should also be willing to participate in online discussions, and ask questions when you are not sure of something. Online courses are not for everyone. You also need to be comfortable using technology, including online discussion software.

4. If I have never taken an online class before, what do I need to do to be ready for a KSOI class?

Most online classes have software (Learning Management System – LMS) that helps the teacher provide materials, set up online discussions, and receive assignments. MCC uses LMS Canvas for this purpose. When you log on to MCC’s Canvas software, you will complete an orientation module before you begin the first KSOI class. This orientation will help you get ready to use Canvas. When the class starts, you can get help from your instructor or contact the MCC help desk.
